DIARY, from March 14, 1861, to November 12, 1862. By Adam Gurowski. Boston: Lee & Shepard, publishers For sale by Bowen, Stewart & Co., Indianapolis. The Diary is written by a foreign adventurer, who for a time was employed in the State De partment. He is a radical, a revolutionist and a uine black fruit cake, should be particular and lover of the negro. Gurowski professes to give revelations of men and things which he saw and heard himself, and what he heard from others on whose veracity he could rely. Throughout the author exhibits assumption and impudence. but he has made a readable book, for a dish of scandal is relished by the great majority of man and womankind. The object of the book is to convict the Administration and the present military rulers with an indirect sympathy with, and support of, the rebellion, and doubtless furnished the Bank of the State will be closed on Thursday, the material for the Cincinnati Gazette and the radicals generally, in their attacks upon the pres ent military and civil representatives of the gov ernment. Speech of W. B. Beach. Esq. - The Demo cratic Club was filled last night to hear the address of Mr. Beach. Notwithstanding the rain a number of ladies were present. The speech was worthy the man and the occasion. He reviewed the causes that led to the present distracted state of the country and pointed out what he conceived to be the duty of all honest and patriotic men. He did not conceive, and never did, that the Union could ever be restored by war alone Such being his opinion, as an honest man he felt in duty bound to express it, and if those who heard him were satisfied he was right, they should say so. He did not counsel submission on the part of the North-far from it-but we should be willing to say to the South that their constitutional rights would be secured to them. We should place ourselves clearly in the right. He believed the war could have been avoided, and pretty clearly dem onstrated that it been hurried on not to save the Government, but to save the Republican party His language was temperate but firm, and he moressed upon his audience the duty they owed to themselves and the country to make known their opinions. The Government was fast passng into the hands of an Abolition faction-a mere faction, he believed, who did not represent the views of a respectable minority of even the Republican party. Was such a faction, unrebaked, to be suffered to plunge the country into irreparable ruin and make a desolution of this once happy country? He loved the old flag with a reverential feeling that was a part of his very nature. That old flag, he believed, with wisdom in our councils, would yet float over the entire country, but the policy must be abandoned that united the South and distracted the North. Curtin, during his late visit, stated that any at tempt to remove Seward from the Cabinet would place Pennsylvania in opposition to the Adminis tration, is authoritatively denied. Immediately after the battle of Fredericksburg Gov. Curtin telegraphed to Secretary Stanton, offering, on the part of Pennsylvania, any possible aid, and while here stated that nothing, in such peril of the country, could array Pennsylvania against the Administration. A special to the Herald says:

The Committee on the Conduct of the War examined Halleck, Meigs, Wooodbury of the Engineers, and Haupt of the Transport Department, upon matters connected with the battle of Fred ericksburg. Their testimony was mainly confirmatory of that of Burnside and the command ers of the three grand divisions. General Halleck stated to the committee that

McClellan had advised preparation of bridges in advance; bridges were not sent forward, however, for fear they would be captured before the army reached that point. The testimony of Burnside and his Generals will, when made public, make the Army of the Potomac the admiration of the world. Gen. Wadsworth has been assigned to the command of the 2d division, Sumner's corps. Burnside to-day returned to his headquarters,

In the meantime Stanton feels stronger than ever, and seems unconcious of the influences rapidly combining against him. His personal relations with Mr. Blair have ever been most unfriendly, and the latter comes of a race and family unused to defeat. The Senate is like a strong army repulsed in a bold a tack; it faces back in good order and ca 's a council of war, possibly to plan a flank move ment. That it will abandon the enterprise it has un lertaken, is not within the circuit of possibility. The war now declared will most likely involve the House in its struggle, and aiready the Representatives are anxiously consulting on the subject. Unless the President yields it will soon be Congress against the Executive, and the result of such a struggle is not difficult to foretell. Never

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 .- The President has issued the following:

EXECUTIVE MANSIEN, WASHINGTON, Dec. 23, 1862.

To the Army of the Potomac: I have just received from your Commanding General a report of the battle of Fredericksburg. The attempt was not an error, nor the fuilure other than accident. The courage with which you on an open field maintained the contest against an entrenched foe, and the consummate skill and success with which you crossed and recrossed the river in the face of the enemy, show that you possess all the qualities of a great army, which will yet give victory to the cause of the country and of popular Government. Condoling with the mourners for the dead, and sympathizing with the severely wounded, I congratulate you that the number of both is comparatively small, and tender to you, officers and sol diers, the thanks of the nation. [Signed] ABRAHAM LINCOLN.
